

the web designer

Description:

Since 2003 The Web Designer have been servicing our clients with a variety of design needs.

As our name suggests, we primarily design websites. Websites with content managements systems, customer relationship management engines, database development, e-commerce shopping carts, inventory management modules and a host of other web based applications custom built for an ever-changing market.

And with the dazzling design of the finished result comes a process devoted to functionality. We work hard and we work smart. We work to W3C compliance where necessary. We use CSS. We integrate usability practices into our websites so that the end user has a smooth journey as they navigate their way around. We live and breath search engine optimisation as what point is a website that nobody sees. We aim to hit your target audience... right between the eyes.

But besides the big, bad world of web... we also design for print. And we also provide a hosting service, domain name registration, email mark
